ISIDOR STRAUS ESTATE PAYS TAX ON $2,300,000

Executors of the Victim of the Titanic.

Gross Value of Property Is From $3,500,000 to 81,000,000.

To-day is the last day on which advance payments may be made to the State omptroller for the transfer tax of the estates of victims of the Titanic disaster The tentative tax on the estates of Isidor Straus, his wife and William Augustus Spencer were paid yesterday, but no advance has been made for the 5 per cent. rebate on the estates of Benjamin Guggenheim, Henry B. Harris and others drowned six months ago to-day.

The tax paid at Albany on the estate of Isidor Straus was $72,200. It was stated yesterday by the attorneys for the executors that this does not represent the exact amount due from the estate, but is as near the sum to be paid as can be estimated at this time.

The payment of the $72,200 indicates that the tentative net value put on the estate is $2,316,250, but it includes public bequests of $185,000, which are exempted from tax. It represents the value of the estate after payment of funeral expens. Commissions of executors and indebtedness and after other deductions have been made.

Mr. Straus left $500,000 in trust for each of his three daughters, Mrs. Sarah Hess, wife of Dr. Alfred Hess; Mrs. Minnie Weit, daughter of Dr. Richard Weil; and Mrs. Vivian Scheftel, wife of Herbert K. Scheftel. Upon the death of each beneficiary the principal of the trust fund goes to the heirs of the beneficiary.

Upon the basis of the tax the net residuary estate, which was left to the three The payment of the $72,200 indicates ary estate, which was left to the three sons, Jesse I., Percy S. and Herbert N. Straus, will be $626,250. The testator eft to his three sons all his interest in . H. Macy & Co., Abraham & Straus and L. Straus & Son, the value of which has not yet been fixed.

Edmond E. Wise of counsel for the Edmond F. Wise of counsel for the executors said last night that certain deductions have been claimed for the estate in the payment of the tax, which makes the gross value of the estate from $3.500,000 to $4,000,000. The estate will be sufficient to pay the $1,500,000 to the three daughters without including any part of the stock in the three corporations left to the sons.

The tentative payment upon the estate of Mrs. Straus was $2.850, which indicates of Mrs. Straus was $2,850, which indicates that the net value of her estate, after all deductions, is $170,000, but it is said that the gross estate is about $250,000. drs. Straus left no will.

The estate of William August Spencer is estimated at $1,848,875, upon the advance payment of $58,900 as the tax on his estate. Mr. Spencer left $50,000 to his brother, Lorillard Spencer, and the fatter amount to his sizer the Beingare. s brother, Lorillard Spencer, and the came amount to his sister, the Princess Vicovaro of Rome.

Mr. Spencer left his entire residuary estate of $1,600,000 to his widow, Marie of war. He would institute courses in right of the New York Public Library. The library also receives Mr. Spencer's backs, and the total value of the bequest to be library is estimated at nearly $600,000. This bequest is not exempted from a law, because the widow received a life interest.

Advocates initiary instituted in the course of war. He would institute courses in right shooting and elementary warfare, with army officers as instructors. By cooperation with State militia organizations, as at present, Gen. Wood says that in the course of a few years we will have a fighting force of $600,000 me, whereas now only a small part of that number could put in the field.

The intimation throughout was that prices must continue to climb unless remedies are evolved which will bring about a production adequate to the constantly growing demand.

Among the remedies advocated were greater attention to the cattle and hog industry among farmers and the restrictions of immigration to lessen the demand for meat. It was asserted that while the population of the country has increased 21 per cent. through immigration during the last decade the supply of meat food products has increased not more than 4½ per cent., and there has been legislative enactment to prevent the butchering of claves until they are 2 years old.

Fond of Drink-She Denies It. Esther Primrose, wife of George Primrose, a minstrel, began yesterday her suit against her husband for sepa-ration and alimony before Justice Keogh n the Supreme Court at White Plains. After hearing part of the testimony the Justice tried to induce the couple to forgive each other, but they agreed that was impossible. Primrose denied the cruelty and de-sertion charged by his wife and testified that "too many highballs broke up my home." He said that his wife was re-peatedly under the influence of liquor and that on one bill sent by a Mount Vernon grocer for one month, while Primrose was on the road, there was an item of fifty bottles of whiskey and gin, which his wife had ordered.

Mrs. Primrose said that her brother-in-law, Albert Primrose, was the cause of the separation. She testified that Albert was drunk "almost all the time" while he lived with them. She declared she had always been the Commissioner to remove the tablets in the interest of art. The commission didn't exactly put that way, but it reminded Mr. Kennedy that it had long ago gone on record as opposing the placing of table ts, ornamental or otherwise, on the outside of public buildings unless in exceptional cases, and the Commissioners didn't consider shelters "exceptional cases. The tablets were taken down with more
